

Cambridge Four Had More Speed and Power in Race With Penn Relay, Says Captain Larry Brown

BEST FOUR-MILE TEAM IN HISTORY

Captain Brown, of Penn Relay, Praises Britons—Thinks Stallard a Super Miller

RAN A MILE IN 4:27

By LAWRENCE A. BROWN
 Captain of Pennsylvania Track and Field team, Larry Brown, yesterday I have been asked by any number of the members of the track team and friends whether the Cambridge four-mile team was as good as the Penn relay team in this country. My answer to all such queries was an emphatic "yes."

I have no excuses to offer for our defeat. We lost to a team that was one of the most brilliant I have seen in my life. They were in action. There was no disgrace in losing to such a team. They defeated us because man for man they had more speed and more power than we had.

I think that our team ran as well as any of our most enthusiastic friends could desire. A number of University graduates who saw the race in London praised our running and said that we were up against the strongest English team they had ever seen.

We averaged 4 minutes 35 seconds, a track that was many seconds slow, and on a track that was many seconds fast. The Cambridge team was as good as the Penn relay team in this country. My answer to all such queries was an emphatic "yes."

The day was the worst I have ever attempted to run on. The weather kept the crowd down to 5000, when three times that number were expected.

The Cambridge team is a remarkable one and absolutely the best there is. No one could feel disgraced at being defeated by them. The English writers say that the quartet is the best collection of milers of all times, and I believe it.

Mountain, the famous Cambridge miler, ran from them to lead the first lap. From then on they were well out in front, with Oxford and our team fighting it out away back. When McLean gave me the baton, Stallard had twenty yards to go. There was no chance of beating him. I played it safe so as to be sure of beating Oxford.

Stallard ran about 4 minutes 27 seconds. I did about 4 minutes 23 seconds. I think Stallard is the greatest miler of today, and am sure if he were running under the ideal conditions we have here would break the world's record for the event. I think he is going to beat Hill, the Olympic champion, when they get together a little later in the season.

Stallard is a much improved runner over what he was when in the relay here in 1920. At that time he ran a remarkable half mile, but since then he has done even better.

The trip to this country and the University of Pennsylvania a world of good, both from an athletic and a friendly standpoint, between the athletes of the two countries. We lived with and learned from the Cambridge while in England, and I feel that as athletes we understand each other's viewpoint much better than ever in the past.

Our team could certainly not complain of the treatment we received abroad. From the time we landed until we left England, except during training time we were treated as guests. Every place we traveled we were greeted like celebrities. The night of the race we were the guests of the Achilles Club at the Queens Club, and many notable guests sat at the table with us.

Lord Desborough, Sir Theodore Cook, Mr. Montague Sherman, Bevil Rudd, who ran here in 1920, and a host of other notable were in attendance. All agreed that the race had done much for athletics between the two countries and all expressed the wish that we would soon return the compliment.

Many of our friends have asked me about our flying trip to Paris. We left a couple of days after the accident when the two fliers collided in mid-air. I shall never forget our ride. We were up in the air in more ways than one for four hours, passing through a snow-storm and landing at night. I think we were unanimous after we breathed a sigh of relief when we landed on Mother Earth that it was our first and last trip in the clouds.

This afternoon we will be out on Franklin Field to start training for the relay. We are all in excellent shape, although all but Robertson, McLean and myself had a touch of seasickness coming over.

EDDIE McNICOL GUEST AT LANCASTER BANQUET
 Penn Coach Will Address High School Basketball Team
 Lancaster, Pa., April 24.—Eddie McNicol, coach of the University of Pennsylvania basketball team, will be the guest of honor at the community banquet to be held here tonight in honor of Lancaster High School's basketball quintet. The local school recently finished a most successful season under the tutelage of Coach Harry D. Weller, winning six out of seven games.

The only game dropped was to South Philadelphia High School, which nosed out the local five by a three-point score. As a consequence, the local team claims the State championship outside of Philadelphia.

Mayor Frank Mussler and Elmer J. Eschelman, president of the Chamber of Commerce, will be other speakers at the banquet. This is the first time in history that women have been admitted to athletic affairs of this sort. According to reservations received, the fair rooters may outnumber the men at the dinner.

Amateur Sports
 The Lithuanian A. C. will present a strong first-class team in their second year of baseball. At the start of last season the team was organized and games were played with the second-class teams, and the nine waged right through those clubs, and at the close of the season was playing some first-class teams.

It is the only Lithuanian team around the city, and is managed by Anthony Urban, who guards the second sack, in addition to booking the games for the team. Manager Urban has strengthened his nine by securing a new battery, and is now after the big teams of the city for games.

Again in Ring
 Al Jolson, comedian and fight fan, has been invited to attend the invitational amateur boxing tournament on Wednesday night at the Olympia Club. A box has been reserved for the actor and his party. Jolson probably will referee in several of the bouts.

PHILA. NAVY YARD BIG SPORT CENTER

U. S. Officials Here Wide Awake to Encourage Athletics for Sailors

BOOST MASS ATHLETICS

The United States Navy Department is wide awake to the fact that athletics play a very important part in the young sailor's life. Not only are they a means for the bluejean, but they are a means to an end, in that they give him that alertness of mind and body that is so essential for the best type of sailor.

This was clearly demonstrated during the late war, when speed, clear-sightedness and endurance were some of the biggest factors in victory. Practically every the moieties that who some sport is one of the best mediums for increasing vitality and for the preservation of health.

The authorities at the Philadelphia Navy Yard are great believers in mass athletics and are doing everything to encourage the men to take up some branch during their spare hours. Lieut. C. Gulbranson, United States Navy, assistant to the moral officer, is in direct charge of the athletic activities.

Assisting him is an athletic director. Every ship in the yard and all stations have an athletic officer. These cooperate with the moieties that who some sport is one of the best mediums for increasing vitality and for the preservation of health.

Excellent Athletic Field
 The Navy Yard boasts an excellent athletic field, which is used for football, basketball and baseball. It also has a large gymnasium for basketball, boxing and gymnastics. A swimming pool adjoins the gym and is very popular during the summer.

The swimming pool is very popular. Not only is the pool used by men capable of swimming, but a corps of instructors was on hand daily to teach the non-swimmers the fundamental ideas of staying above water. This instruction was compulsory to all sailors stationed at the receiving station who could not swim. An average of fifty men were instructed daily.

All were hard fought until the whistle blew ending the contest. The average player was well versed in the rules and played accordingly.
